

♠ I get so proud, my dears, whenever I see young Egyptians doing so well abroad. Mansour Iskander, for example, has just received the prestigious “Eon-Energy Scientific Award 2002”. Eon is the third biggest industrial company in Germany with activities in the fields of energy, telecommunication and chemistry. Iskander, who works as a consultant and project manager for a German management consulting company, was given the award by the Bavarian minister of education and culture, and the president of Munich’s Technical University. Iskander’s boss, Horst Wildemann, nominated Iskander’s MBA thesis — “Core Process Analysis in the Service Sector” — for the award. According to the jury, Iskander’s work is pioneering in the field of business process management.